

The State of Workplace Inclusion & Accommodations

Background:

- Inclusively surveyed ~9,000 job seekers on our Hire platform in July 2024
- Respondents were job seekers or currently employed
- Inclusively received 544 responses

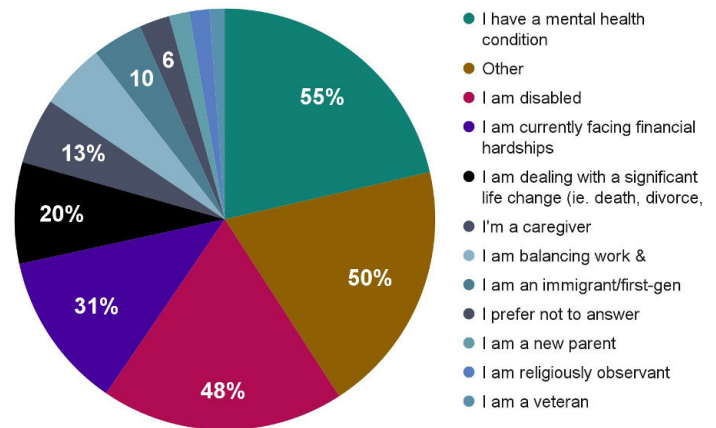

Key Takeaways:

- Majority of job seekers have disability-related issues—with neurodivergence & mental health conditions topping the list
- Respondents do not feel safe disclosing and need anonymous support & accommodations to stay & be productive in their job

Top Identified Disability-Related Issue: Neurodivergence & Mental Health Condition

Mental Health Is The Top Reason For Needing Accommodations

77% Want Support Using Anonymous Tools

● Strongly Agree
 ● Agree
 ● Disagree
 ● Strongly Disagree
 ● Neutral

58% know how to request accommodations in the hiring process; 48% know how to request as a new hire – But Over Half (56%) Do Not Request Accommodations

Almost 60% Cited Accommodations As Critical to Workplace Success

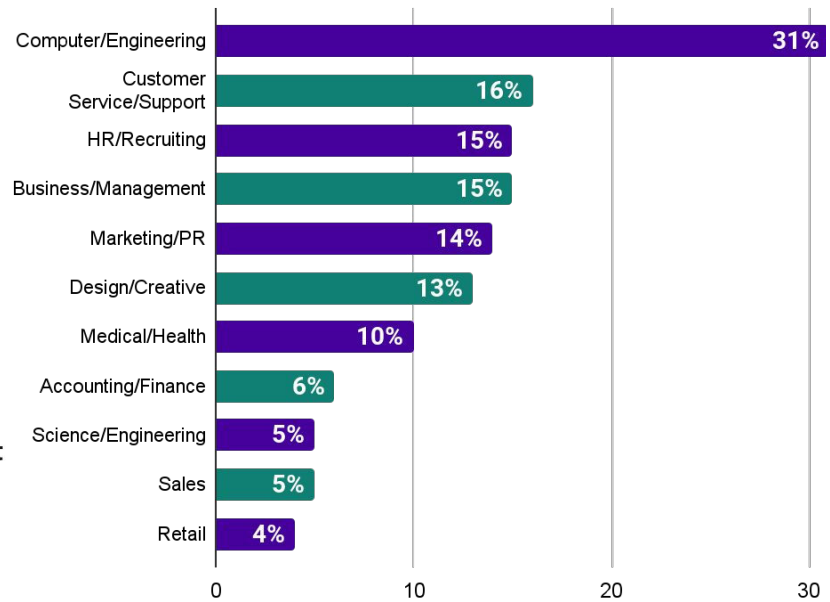

43% Who Do Not Disclose Say They Don't Feel Safe Doing So

46% Who Disclose Say The Process is Difficult

Computer Engineering Job Seekers Are Searching for Accommodations The Most

Employer's Call To Action – Tap Inclusively's Retain Platform to:

- Maximize Existing Investments: Bring together & highlight all of the benefits & services already offered, ensuring they are better utilized and easily accessible.
- Improve Employee Support with a 'Universal Approach': Personalized, anonymous, and stigma-free support through the platform, helps meet all employees' needs, leading to improved productivity, retention, and well-being.
- Streamline Processes: Centralizes and simplifies the Interactive Accommodations Process (IAP) by tying together disparate processes and lowering exposure to risk.